USU Associate Professor Inducted into American Academy of Nursing

BETHESDA, Md. — Gloria Ramsey, JD, RN, FAAN, associate professor for the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences' (USU) Graduate School of Nursing was recently inducted into the American Academy of Nursing.

The Academy serves the public by advancing health policy and practice through the generation, synthesis, and dissemination of nursing knowledge. It consists of 1,500 members, known as Fellows.

“What an honor to be among nursing’s most accomplished leaders in education, practice and research,” Ramsey said.

Located on the grounds of Bethesda’s National Naval Medical Center and across from the National Institutes of Health, USU is the nation’s federal school of medicine and graduate school of nursing. The university educates health care professionals dedicated to career service in the Department of Defense and the U.S. Public Health Service. Students are active-duty uniformed officers in the Army, Navy, Air Force and Public Health Service, who are being educated to deal with wartime casualties, national disasters, emerging infectious diseases, and other public health emergencies. Of the university’s more than 4,200 physician alumni, the vast majority serve on active duty and are supporting operations in Iraq, Afghanistan, and elsewhere, offering their leadership and expertise.
